(57) A method of extracting of prebiotic chitin from cricket (grylloidea)" and the product thereof is disclosed. The prebiotic chitin extract from cricket (gryllidae) is disclosed. Prebiotics are food or part of food not digested by digestive enzymes, but have a positive effect on host organisms by selectively stimulating useful intestinal bacteria. A method for extraction and testing prebiotic chitin by use of sodium hydroxide and hydrochloric acid and the extracted chitin is washed with hot water to remove the chemical and wash out any remaining polysaccharides. Bacteria agar and broth media is modified using different concentration of chitin. The invention reveals an increase in growth of beneficial bacteria as the chitin concentration increases while the pathogenic bacteria is decreased. It provides an extract that has the ability of chitin to promote growth of beneficial bacteria and suppress pathogenic bacteria to curb enteric diseases.

(57) The present invention discloses a system for purification of high grade Biomethane fuel from Water hyacinth (Ecchnoria crassipes), an invasive weed that grows in polluted environments. The system comprises a bioreactor, water trap, hydrogen sulphide scrubber, dehydration unit, carbon dioxide scrubber, compressor and Biomethane fuel tank. The bioreactor operates within a range of 22 - 35 DC in a polyethene cover. Also disclosed is production of high quality bio- fertilizer from E. crassipes. The gas initially produced in biogas is a mixture of Carbon dioxide 30-40%, methane 45-50%, nitrogen 5-6%, hydrogen sulphide 0.001% and other traces. The biogas is upgraded to 95% Biomethane. The invention discloses a process for removal of CO₂, H₂S and H₂O with an efficiency of 95-99%, 100%, and 100% respectively using local materials. The removal of H₂S protects the metallic parts from corrosion by the acid gas.

The shoppable concrete building is a concept which is mainly aimed to bring residential construction at the reach of owners without using highly specialized equipment or intervention of highly specialized skills. It results in a construction method faster than wood construction and, depending on the location, more cost effective. All the components of the structure, floors and walls are available in a warehouse, shopped and delivered to the construction site. They are then quickly mounted using basic lifting devices. It can take less than one month to assembly those elements for a five-story building with 10 apartments for example, with very little human and technical resources. The foundation and the roof are not considered in the invention.

(54) RAIN WATER UNDERGROUND RESERVOIR TECHNOLOGY

(57) The present invention relates to rain water reservoir technologies and in particular to the water collection, preservation and storage .rainwater reservoir technologies is dug like any other borehole but expansive in size depending on one's requirement .This is basically depending on capacity use. The main storage is purely underground. The size above the ground should be a maximum of seven feet to avoid risk of overweight water torrents. The bulk weight should be underground with reinforced concrete for case of management. The water is externally collected and stored as opposed to borehole whose source of the same is from underground. This product is designed to provide water for irrigation and domestic use. The source of this water is purely from rain and some seasonal springs if available directed to the reservoir for use. The greater picture here is the requirement need quantified to every household multiplied by the number of months to the next raining season.
